

Heart Of Stone

Two young lovers had a passionate thing
He saved his money for a diamond ring
One night she called him, broke it off on the phone Turned that diamond to a heart of stone

A young girl in trouble was the talk of the town
Her Daddy hollered, "I don't want you around"
On a one-way ticket she climbed the Greyhound alone Driven away by a heart of stone

Oh - it's hard to know
how love and trust can turn so cold
One side is hoping, one side is gone rolls away on a heart of stone

He finds a bridge where the water is deep He puts her picture and that diamond to sleep
She left without even saying goodbye and she can't hold back the tears in her eyes Steel-knives and words cut right to the bone but nothing hurts like a heart of stone

how love and trust can turn so cold
One side is hoping, one side is gone
rolls away on a heart of stone
